Prime for Life. It's for the curious, the concerned, and those making high-risk choices. Approximately three out of every ten people in the United States make alcohol and/or drug choices that research shows are high risk. They experience the most problems, and this experience is tailored for them. This group includes, but is not limited to, people with a legal or policy violation on the road (impaired driving offenders), on the job, or at school. Prime programs are most appropriate for about ages 13 and older.

What We Teach, How We Teach It. The Exploring Unit examines the perception of personal risk; the Reflecting Unit illustrates the progression toward addiction and allows participants to assess where they might be on that path and the Protecting Unit guides preparation for personal change.

- Research and insights based on more than 1,800 studies conducted over the last 75 years around the globe
- With persuasion and motivational protocol, utilizing principles and processes consistent with Motivational Interviewing and the Transtheoretical Model
- Specific guidance regarding personal choices, the management of resistance, support for change, and a plan for success
- Activities that are to be completed during sessions utilizing workbooks required for all participants
- Presenting carefully selected information in a non-judgmental way which provokes new thinking and provides individuals with a solid basis for making decisions about their own alcohol and drug use

Instructor-Led. The Prime For Life experience is led by a certified instructor, and certification in any version of Prime For Life allows an instructor to deliver all versions of the program.
